Along the way, stop at Wat Rong Khun - also known as the 'White Temple', a dazzling temple complex that stands out as one of the most incredible in the whole country. Although it is not as old as others in the Thai capital, its bright white facade, mirrored glass decorations, and intricately-carved patterns are both distinct and arrestingly beautiful.

Head back on the road toward a charming Akha and Yao Hill Tribe Village. After saying hello to the welcoming locals, continue our trip to Chiang Saen and the Golden Triangle, the meeting point of Laos, Thailand, and Myanmar.

Our next destination is Wat Tha Ton (Tha Ton Temple), it is a large temple complex in a very attractive setting only a few kilometers from the border neighboring Myanmar. The temple is located on top of a hill overlooking the local village of Ban Thaton and the Mae Kok River.

Lunch is served at an affordable local restaurant on the way.

Upon arrival at the temple, we start our walk up to the top. You can choose the option to conquer the 300 steps or swap two feet for a cable car instead. At the top, you have a chance to explore the central chedi adorned in golden flakes, renowned for its glittering façade under the mid-day sun.

You will be transferred back to the budget hotel to take a rest.

You can get a taste of what makes northern Thai food distinctive and famous, even among Thailand's iconic cuisine. Tonight's outing is your chance to experience a unique and rather delicious Thai custom, the "Khantoke" dinner, which is served on large platters on low tables.

Savor a selection of iconic Northern-style dishes, including spicy chili dip with steamed vegetables, crispy pork skin, fried chicken wings, spicy sausage, and the classic Burmese-inspired pork curry.

During your meal, you can enjoy a line-up of live dance and music performances by members of surrounding ethnic hill tribes, including Karen, Hmong, Lahu, Akha, Mien, and Lisu.
